VISION
YPR envisions a world where everyone can access the necessary resources to recover from substance use disorder and associated high-risk behaviors.

MISSION
YPR’s mission is to provide the training and networks all individuals, families, and communities need to recover and maximize their full potential.
From Our President & CEO

This past year has been a tremendous success for Young People in Recovery (YPR), which would not have been possible without our fearless YPR Supporters, YPR Chapter Members, YPR Chapter Leaders, our extremely hard-working staff team, and the leadership of our Board of Directors. Our newly updated vision and mission statements are more than just ideas and statements but true declarations that result in action. Action that translates to communities becoming recovery-ready.

These recovery-ready communities not only empower young people in or seeking recovery to thrive in their communities but those same young people in or seeking recovery go on to impact people of all ages, backgrounds, diverse recovery pathways, and are leaders in their communities. Our leaders are inspirations to their families, friends, classmates, colleagues, and their legislative representatives. This annual report will further highlight the many achievements that our leaders accomplished over the past year.

I remain humbly honored to be a part of Young People in Recovery and I am thrilled to see what we will accomplish in 2018. Again, I cannot thank everyone enough for making YPR a reality and together, creating a recovery-ready nation.

Impact: Chapters

Advocacy in Action

Over the past year, YPR has continued to refine its infrastructure to meet the needs of our talented volunteers and the communities they serve across the country.

![Event Attendance Chart]

YPR chapters are a vehicle for community organizing around recovery.

Chapters engage in activity ranging from advocacy events like town halls and community forums to providing direct recovery support in their communities by hosting workshops and all-recovery meetings. Chapter leaders are trained extensively in leadership development, community organizing best practices, recovery messaging and advocacy.

YPR took our model further this year to help chapters accomplish their goals by providing technical assistance and support through a team of Regional Chapter Coordinators, all of whom have established and led successful chapters themselves. The establishment of this Regional Coordinator Team is already seeing success in how we deliver support to our many volunteers across the United States.

Volunteers started an additional 20 chapters in 4 new states in 2017.
Impact: Programs

PROGRAM GROWTH IN 2017

YPR programs provide recovery support services to communities in multiple states across the country.

In 2017, YPR programs experienced phenomenal growth and development. YPR’s EPIC program expanded from two sites under contract to 13 sites under contract. YPR’s Phoenix program expanded from one site under contract to five sites under contract. Data collected over the second half of 2017 indicates a 22% average increase in participants “recovery capital” from program start to program finish.

Lastly, in 2017, YPR piloted a recovery coach training and supervision program in rural Texas where we trained approximately 54 coaches who in turn provided 4,000 coaching services to clients in their communities.

We look forward to the growth and development of our programs to come in 2018.
